Summary

- Legal framework comparison, Afghanistan Vs Bangladesh
- Considerations for adaptation Bangladesh's model in Afghanistan
- PPP, a new concept for us, a matured and examined practice in other world

Legal framework comparison, Afghanistan Vs Bangladesh

- Financial intermediary is not practiced in our legal framework
- Our funds follow structure is different
- Vision and Mission of main energy sector role-players are different

Considerations for adaptation Bangladesh's model in Afghanistan

- absence of financial intermediary/ fund allocation and fund management system
- Our milestones for achieving Afghanistan National Strategic Plan and power sector roadmap are not well defined
- Tariff rates are not well defined, viability analysis is difficult
- Contractual framework for PPP is not examined in our country, Public and private patterns can not trust each other

PPP, a new concept for us, a matured and examined practice in other world

- We have just passed PPP law in this year
- Provisions in Public infrastructures procurement, concessions (not passed) and public procurement law (passed) may have contradictions to this new law,
